Dysart revokes Ride's invitation

Dysart Council's decision to revoke its invitation to host the 1990 Ride For Sight has caught organizers by surprise and now the rush is on to find a new site.

When organizers pulled the massive fundraising event out of Minden last November, a letter was sent from Dysart township inviting them to bring the event to Glebe Park.

However, after the organizers came last Monday to discuss this offer, council decided the event is too large for the park.

Co-chairman of this year's Ride Gerry German told The Times he is surprised at council's decision. "We didn't ask them, they gave us the invitation," he said in a telephone interview Friday. "We came to take them up on the offer and we felt we could do it (at Glebe Park) without a lot of problems."

Ride organizers decided to move the event from Peterborough's Trent University after being told the university would accommodate a maximum of 5,000 this summer. Last year's Ride drew about 5,500 motorcycles carrying between 9,000 and 10,000 people. It also raised $475,000 for the Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation.

German, who had not yet heard of Dysart's decision, said he is disappointed. "Now the rush is on" to find a new location, he said. Everything has to be settled by December 1 in order to plan and publicize the event. "It leaves us in a position of looking harder at alternate locations."

German said the organizers have a number of options in mind. "Maybe we'll even look at Minden again. Who knows?" He said there is a planning committee meeting scheduled for September 23, at which time they will review their options.

Councillor Murray Fearry was the Reeve of Dysart when the invitation was sent. Contacted Friday, he said it is not unusual for the township to seek out potential new events for the municipality. "It was a desirable thing to start discussions with them," Fearry said. "We're always willing to talk with anyone."

Fearry, however, was among the councillors to vote against hosting the event here this summer. He said the Ride has grown too large for the community to accommodate.

Reeve Bill Davis said he was not aware the township had invited Ride For Sight to come to the village. However, he agreed Glebe Park is a poor

'A hollow victory:' Gord Monk

Tax reduction doesn't correct flood plain mapping flaws

The fight to correct the wrongs in Minden's flood plain mapping will not end with a tax reduction for one local businessman.

Last week the Ministry of Revenue agreed to a reduction in Gord Monk's property assessment in response to the effect the flood plain zoning will have on his property values. While this ruling addresses his personal grievance, a tax reduction does not correct the "flaws" in the mapping.

Monk, who owns Gordon A Monk Funeral Home, approached Minden Council Thursday urging them to resist the Ministry of Natural Resources' insistence on implementing a flawed document. He also encouraged council to consider methods of improving its communications with the public.

Commenting on last week's decision to adjust his property assessment, Monk said he is "not elated at the decision." Although it means his taxes will drop by 15 per cent, it also means other taxpayers in the municipality will have to pick up the difference.

Flood plain mapping was demanded by the Ministry of Natural Resources when the municipality was in the process of updating its comprehensive zoning by-law. That by-law has been passed by council and is pending final approval from the Ontario Municipal Board. Several residents have objected to the flood plain zoning and those appeals have yet to be heard at a formal OMB hearing.

Since the flood plain mapping was a ministry initiative, Monk believes the province should be compensating the affected property owners.

"The MNR and MOE have inflicted something on the township and there should be compensation . . . not from the township," said Monk. He called his tax adjustment a "hollow victory." He said it affects the whole township because it shifts the tax base.

Although some councillors agreed the ministry should be asked to address this matter, Reeve Ray Moore said it is futile to argue anything with any provincial ministry. Moore said the township is "getting shafted" by the bureaucracy on several matters. He said it is unlikely the ministry pay any attention to the concerns on this issue.

"If you can get an answer out of the MNR in any shape or form, I'll pat you on the head," Moore said in response to a suggestion from Councillor Lewis Stevens. Stevens had said it might be a good idea to state that council is not satisfied with the flaws in the flood plain mapping.

Deputy Reeve Bern Berry, however, said it might be worth a try. He wondered if it would be possible to calculate the potential tax loss that will result from the zoning. "Using a bench mark of a 15 per cent reduction, we could try to determine the worst scenario for tax losses and send this information to the appropriate authorities stating they have depreciated our tax base by this amount."

The mapping has been a bone of contention since this process began. And although some alterations have been made, Monk insists it is still far from perfect.

"The MNR openly admitted there are flaws and inaccuracies," Monk told council. "They claim it's very expensive to do something properly." However, Monk believes the zoning will have long-term ramifications and should be done right.

He again drew council's attention to the factors used to establish the elevation for the flood plain. He said it was based on a "worst case scenario" that combines spring runoff with a late-summer storm. Under those circumstances there would be flooding, but Monk said it is "absolutely ridiculous" to assume that a fall storm and spring location for the Ride.

"Ninety-five per cent of the people in Ride are good people and it's a hell of a good cause, but I felt that in the best interests of the community this was not the place for it," said Davis.

In addition to the presentation from German at last Monday's council meeting, a petition was presented from 18 residents of the Bayshore Acres subdivision. The residents believe the Ride would be disruptive and asked council to reject the offer to bring it to Glebe Park.

"I can't blame them," Davis said of those objecting to the Ride. "It's the wrong location for it."

"We have to listen to the people," said the Reeve. He said he weighed the objections against the economic benefits to be derived from such an event and made up his mind to vote against the Ride.

"I couldn't push out of my mind the 8,000 people in a force . . . the potential for a major problem is too great." Davis said there are not enough police in all of Haliburton and Victoria Counties to respond if things got out of control.

"We like things to be promoted, but we can't let the dollar dictate every time," said Davis.

The 1989 Ride in Peterborough was the 11th anniversary of the Ontario version of this event. Prior to that, the Ride was held at Minden's Fairgrounds for seven years. And before that it was held in Orillia and Barrie.

"Every time we move to a new location we have new problems," German said. He said Glebe Park would not have been an exception, since the layout of the campsites would create some difficulties.

German was candid in his response to the concerns raised by area residents and Dysart councillors. "It would certainly be disruptive a little," he said but he would have appreciated the opportunity to address the concerns with the residents.

Davis said council will now have to take a hard look at what sort of events should be allowed at Glebe Park in the future. However, he said it would be difficult to develop a policy since it is impossible to "think of every conceivable thing that could be held in that park."

Davis said modern changes will have to be made to the park to show respect for the neighbours. With two subdivisions adjacent to the park, it is important to attempt to satisfy the residents, he said. He noted that even this summer's bluegrass festival turned out to be a problem and said something will have to be done to prevent that from happening in the future.

Minden urged to fight ministry to correct flood mapping errors thaw can happen concurrently.

"The whole process is suspect and reeks of bureaucratic arrogance and ineptitude," he said.

Asked if he believes the mapping is accurate, the Reeve said he doesn't know enough to make a judgement. "I can't comment because I don't know the first thing about the flood plain," said Moore. "The MNR is supposedly the experts."

Since several property owners have filed objections to the by-law in regard to the flood plain, the by-law is not legally in effect. And although the deadline for filing objections was January of 1989, there is still no ruling or indication of whether there will be a hearing.

Monk was among those who filed objections, but complained Thursday that he was not informed the matter was being appealed. If he had known it was being appealed, he said he would not yet have asked for an adjustment to his property assessment.

Monk said that when his lawyer contacted the municipal office in August to find out if the by-law was in effect, he was told that it is. Monk said the person who answered the phone at the municipal office should have informed his lawyer that the matter is under appeal.

"Communications are extremely important and should be developed," said Monk. He suggested that the township should advise anyone who files objections to by-laws that their correspondence has been received and forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Berry said it might be a good idea in the future to publish a notice in the papers that objections have been received and forwarded.

Councillor Mike Maher disagreed. In most cases, he said there are only a few objectors and they could be notified by letter.

In response to Monk's statement about incorrect information coming from the municipal office, Maher said the lawyer probably asked the wrong question. If the lawyer asked if the by-law had been "passed" the answer is yes, said Maher. However, if he had asked if has been "approved", Maher said the answer is no.

Maher further suggested that Monk's lawyer should have contacted the office in writing. He said a speedy response could have been available if a letter had been sent by fax.

A bargain at twice the price

There was a bit of open bargaining going on at the Stanhope Council-table last Wednesday over the value of the road allowance on Constance Island.

Gary Marquis, one of three partners who own property on the Kushog Lake island, is negotiating the purchase of the unopened road allowances from the township. He was surprised Wednesday when council asked for $5,000 for this land.

Marquis said he understood the cost of the land transfer would be nominal, since the property is of no value to anyone but him and his two partners.

SSSURPRISING DISSSCOVERY

The grade eight students of Mr. Porpath's class at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, strike a National Geographic pose as they display the five and half foot length of the Fox snake discovered last week in Snowdon Township. The Fox snake is a rare find anywhere in Ontario and this one, well outside its range, is even more unusual because of its near record length. Sharing the snake holding responsibilities are, from the left, Bobbi Griffin, Caity Read, Johnny Miscio-Hewson, Cassie Weyrich, Eddy Packard, Bryan Jackson, Anna Tomlinson, Colleen Timbers, Colin Klages and Travis Willison.

Giant Fox snake found near Gelert

The discovery of a snake on County Road One near Gelert has drawn a great deal of interest from area biologists. Not only was the Fox snake well out of its usual range, its length was just short of the longest record in the province.

The snake was discovered on the road by Warner Tomlinson early Thursday morning. Though it had been run over by a vehicle that morning, the body was still in excellent condition. It was the length of the snake which attracted Tomlinson's attention. When he stopped to investigate, he noted the snake was over five feet in length.

Tomlinson then took the snake to the Archie Stouffer Elementary School annex, where his wife, Gloria, is a teacher. She showed the lengthy specimen to the children there and then, packed in ice, the snake was taken to the senior school.

There teacher Ed Porpath, who is involved in a province-wide reptile mapping program, identified the specimen as a Fox snake. He knew the Ministry of Natural Resources would be interested in the find since the snake was out of its usual range and because of its length.

MNR biologist Tim Haxton confirmed that the snake is indeed an unusual find. He said the snake has been classified as a rare species in Ontario (two levels below endangered) by the Nature Conservancy of Canada. He said the usual range for the snake would be close to the great lakes and as far as he is aware, this is the first confirmed sighting of the species in the Minden District.

Haxton said the length of the snake would indicate it was fairly old. The snake found near Gelert measured 171 centimetres (about five and a half feet), just three centimetres short of the longest measured in Ontario.

The snake has been sent to the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto where tests will be carried out to determine the snake's age.

Haxton was uncertain how the snake came to be in Haliburton County. He said there could be a small pocket of Fox snakes in the Gelert area that have gone unnoticed for all these years. The chance of it being "imported" into the area was rare, he thought.

The Fox snake is harmless to humans. Its main diet is rodents, which it kills by constriction.

Owner surprised at land cost

Davis said the $5,000 figure was determined by comparing this to other similar situations. The proposed sale involves 1,800 feet of road allowance with equals 2.7 acres.

The owners are planning to sever their property into five lots. However, to do this they must first purchase the road allowance.

Considering the increased property value and subsequent increase in taxes, Marquis said he thought the township's asking price would be substantially less. He said he had anticipated paying about $500.

Marquis said he would not be able to meet the asking price without consulting with his partners.

Are benefits worth the risk?

Now that the Ride for Sight is back on the road looking for yet another new home, there are some who are speculating that Minden will be among the options to be considered.

Don't, however, kickstart your engines too soon. It's a long ride back to this village after a year's absence, and there are some steep hills to overcome in the hurt feelings generated by last year's pullout.

The Ride For Sight is a worthy cause and organizers are to be commended for the effort they have invested in developing it into such a popular event. So popular, in fact, that as soon as they pulled out of Minden, Haliburton was among the municipalities that went a-wooing.

Last week, ride organizers decided to accept Haliburton's offer, but by then it was too late. Dysart council turned them down and now the ride is scrambling to find a new home.

It is conceivable that Minden council would consider hosting the ride if an offer is made. But there are many factors that would have to be weighed before any decision could possibly be made.

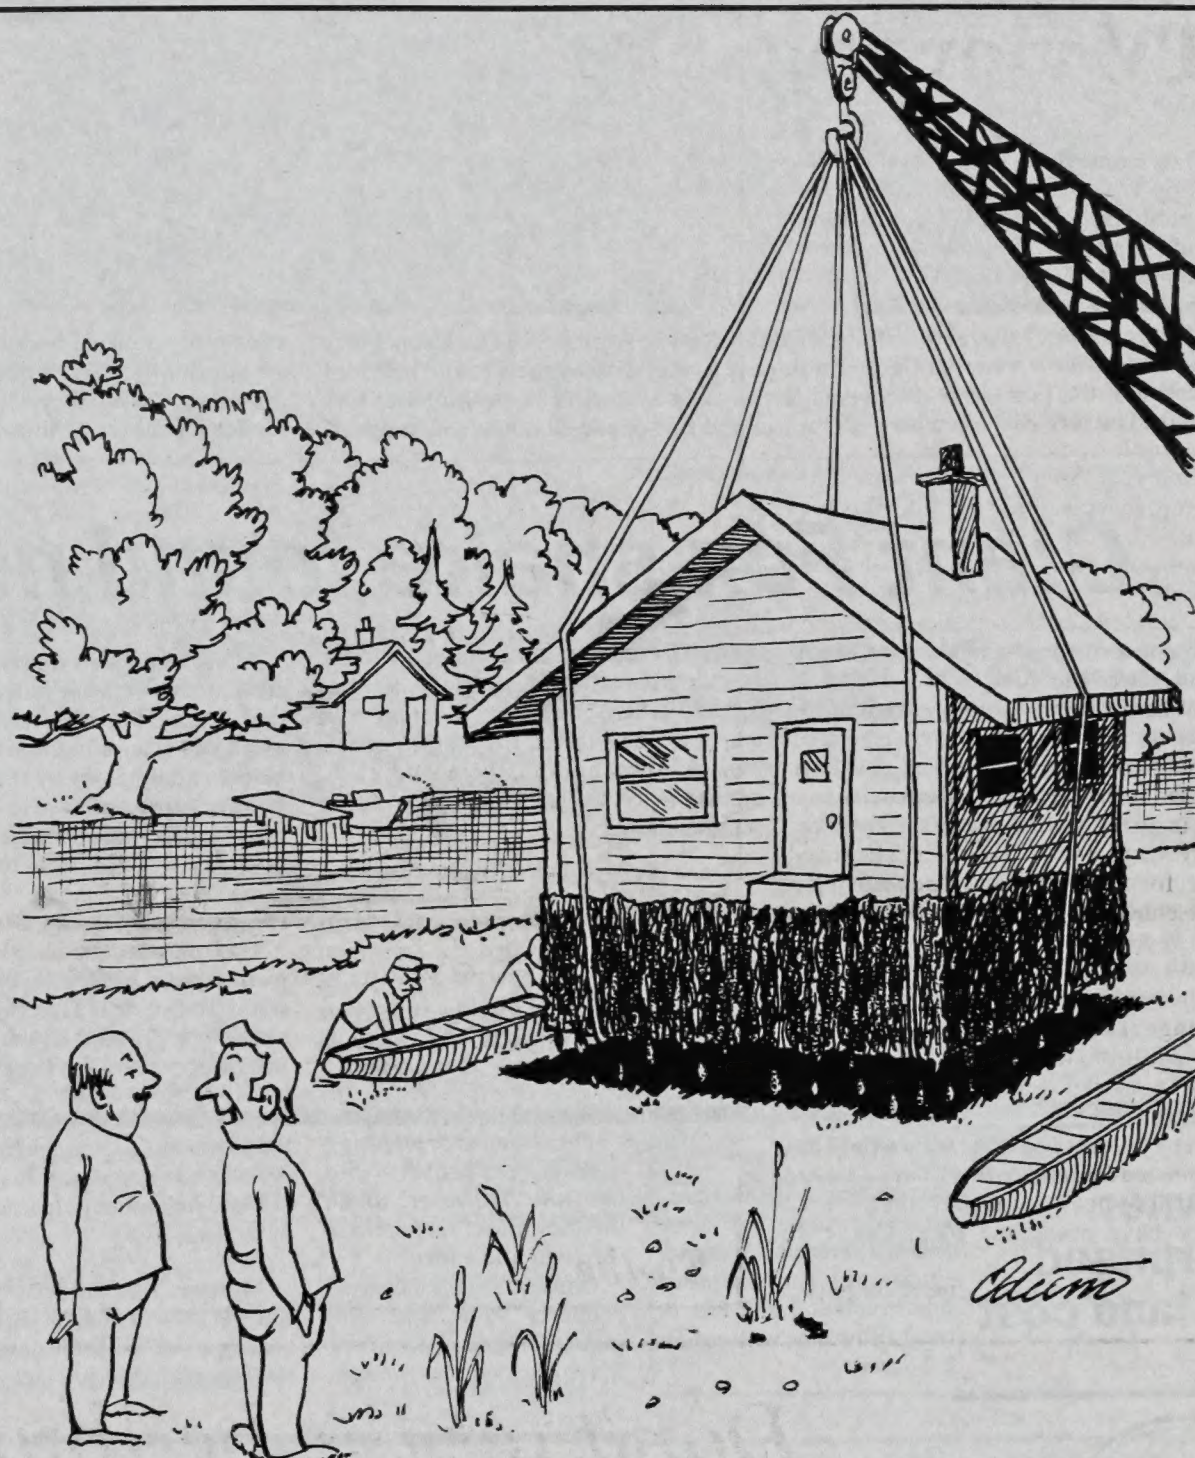

Firstly, there should be more of a commitment to the community from the organizers. When they pulled out of the village last November, they had obviously forgotten the courage this community and council demonstrated by welcoming the event to town in the first place.

Secondly, there would have to be some fence-mending with council. After an agonizing decision to accept the event back again last fall, the organizers decided to head to greener pastures in Peterborough. (The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence, it seems).

Finally, and most importantly, the people of this community would have to express a desire to allow the event to return. Although past experience in Minden proved it can be reasonably well controlled, there have been problems associated with it, spawning justifiable complaints from residents.

It may be that this editorial is academic and organizers will not reconsider Minden as a potential site. However, if a return is considered, this community and our council must be prepared to address all the considerations.

Are the economic benefits of this huge event worth the risks and frustrations involved? Without a solid commitment to the community and to better policing we think not.

Venerable Canadian song lyric

We're on the downslide of another summer, no question about it — but that's not so bad for humans. The approach of autumn means no more than an extra blanket on the bed for you and me. It's the kiss

Yep, all those nasty little critters with stingers and buzzers and feelers and altogether too many legs are just one hard frost away from meeting their maker. I am not a bloodthirsty man, but the thought of billions of man-eating bugs clutching their hearts and falling flat on their carapaced backs fills me with joy unalloyed. DIE, you little &&'s! I'm delighted to know that I'll never see you again, and so is the back of my neck.

Kids need lessons in TV viewing

Editor:

I welcome the article by Arthur Black (Shop 'til you drop is ad-man's message, September 5, 1990). I am a graduate student in the Faculty of Environmental Studies at York University studying Canadian Advertising and Children.

Without a doubt, children are exposed to more advertising than they used to be. They are exposed to several different kinds of advertisements: those intended for adult audiences, those directed to parents of children, those aimed at a heterogeneous audience and those addressed specifically to children (Benjamin Singer, 1986). Most advertisements bypass parents going directly to the children with their messages which is a concern for me as a parent and an observer of the mass media.

When children watch, observe or listen to a commercial, what they experience is not the same as what adults experience. Commercials intended for children differ from those aimed at adults in at least three aspects: the products advertised, the form in which the advertising is presented and the amount of information conveyed (Singer, 1986).

An estimated 80,000 television commercials are seen by children through the age of 16 to several hundred thousand by adulthood. This number would be added to radio and print advertising (Singer, 1986.)

The Ministry of Education (1989) has estimated that students will have watched 15,000 hours of television by the time they have graduated from Grade 12

Enumerators did best possible job

Editor:

I wish to respond on behalf of enumerators as most of us worked very hard under the difficult circumstances to do the best job we could possibly do and not for great compensation.

First was the difficulty of summer - who is seasonal and who permanent. Secondly try to find a good map of the area. All we had were lot and concession numbers and tiny photocopies of the area to be covered, which in reality was about four by four and 1/2 miles. We drove 313 km in 30 hours, spent many hours at home looking at maps, figuring routes, filling in some information on slips. This had to be accomplished after a Sunday instructional meeting on the following Thursday, Friday and Saturday as Sunday was sorting and typing morning to have the list ready and delivered that afternoon.

We were lucky as I live and am known in part of this area so people were more willing to help by supplying information on neighbours on holiday and away, as a lot don't want to talk about this to a stranger. To make the required three calls to every home would have been a sheer impossibility, though we did some two and three. Everyone connected was working under a great deal of pressure, but if ads in local papers were read there was a revising officer at advance polls the Thursday, Saturday and holiday Monday before election, so people really did not have to go to Lindsay.

Don't let the bedbug bite

politicians and the incipient threat of hemorrhoids) needs such a bewildering variety of insects with a taste for human pelt.

Because it isn't just black flies that want to jump our veins. It's mosquitoes and deer flies and horse flies and mites and gnats and beer bugs and noseums — all, all of the vampiric persuasion. And in some parts of this country — everything north of Tecumseh Road in Windsor, Ont., — they hover in clouds, nay, galaxies just waiting for some fat, pink, warm-blooded creature in Bermuda shorts to blunder by.

Why so many of them? And what do they do for lunch when they don't have my body to fight over for drilling rights?

I can't prove it, but I suspect if you peeled back the lichens that blanket the floor of Canada's boreal forest you'd find countless tiny, gothic, Frankensteinian castles each no bigger than a good sized mosquito welt. And I bet if you could peer into the darkest vault in the miniature dungeons beneath each of those castles, you'd see row after row of eensy-weensy coffins lining the walls.

That's where the bugs live. In those coffins. Just imagine 80 kazillion dwarf Bela Lugosis wearing deely boppers. Until I, like a fool show up for a camping trip or a barbecue. That's when the bug lookout rings the dinner gong, 80 kazillion tiny coffin lids slide back and the bugs come after me, buzzing their blood-curdling battle cry: "SOUP'S ONNNNNNNNNNN!"

It's not that grim everywhere in Canada of course. Insect intensity varies greatly across our Dominion. The mosquitoes that wait in ambush along the shores of Ungava Bay for instance, are the Exocet missiles of the biting bug world. They make mosquitoes that live and prey along the American border look like limp-mandibled pantywaists. Folks in Vancouver on the other hand, love to skinny-dip in their hot tubs out on the deck, airily remarking that they "have no mosquitoes to worry about".

Yeah, well, they've got Bill Vander Zalm too. Everything evens out.

In any case, it could be worse. We Canucks could be living in Equatorial Africa, watching a Goliath beetle trying to Have His Way with the family Volkswagen in the driveway. Goliath beetles are as big as your hand, tipping the scales at nearly a quarter of a pound.

And I've heard tell of a water-dwelling insect that inhabits certain South American rivers. In between hosts, that is. This critter prefers to live in the urinary tracts of mammals dumb enough to urinate in the river. The bug is extremely heat sensitive, and small enough to home in on and swim up, the urinary tract of larger animals, including humans. The bug lodges in the urinary tract, using spiny fins that open up like an umbrella to keep him there.

The pain, I am told, is in livid technicolor. On second thought, Canadian bugs don't seem half bad.

Stanhope encouraged to preserve unspoiled Beech River property

Stanhope township should rethink its plans to develop the last bit of unspoiled property around Boshkung Lake, council was told last Wednesday.

In order to raise money for the new municipal building, council has been selling off municipally-owned property. A public meeting was held Wednesday to hear concerns about council's plan to rezone the Beech River property for residential use.

"That river bank is one of the last places that has not been developed," Mary Rintoul argued. "It supports wildlife, which are becoming scarce."

Rintoul and her husband, Elgin, own a cottage at Echo Bay on Boshkung Lake. She said there's more wildlife in her backyard in St. Thomas than anywhere around her cottage.

Stanhope Township bought the 28-acre property adjacent to Highway 36 in the early '80s to use as a gravel pit. Gravel has been extracted from much of the property, but there is still about 1,400 feet of frontage on the river that could be sold for residential use.

Council plans to have the riverfront property rezoned from its present M-2 (Industrial Extractive) zoning to SR-2 (Seasonal Residential). Council further plans to sever the property into seven lots, which would be sold to offset the cost of the new municipal building.

Township Administrator Gerald Bain noted that the present zoning permits gravel extraction on the shoreline property, something Rintoul admits would be unsatisfactory.

However, residential development on that land would be almost as bad, she said.

"I'd hate to see any more development along that river. What's there is tragic," she said. Many of the property owners have shored up their shorelines with gabion baskets and other devices which are not attractive, she said.

Rintoul and her husband said they would like the property to be rezoned to another zoning that would prohibit any development.

In closing, she told council she has difficulty walking for any distance to view wildlife or go sightseeing. However, she said she can get around in a boat or canoe. "That's why I like the lake and river."

In addition to their objections to this rezoning, the Rintouls vented some dissatisfaction with the amount of shoreline work that is being allowed in the area. "Shoreline development laws are not being heeded," said Mr. Rintoul. "A trip around any lake will show that."

Bain explained that a permit from the Ministry of Natural Resources is required before anyone can legally alter their shoreline properties. He recommended that the ministry could be contacted to find out if the developments the Rintouls have noticed are authorized. Bain also offered to provide the Rintouls with the lot and concession numbers for these properties if they wish to approach the ministry.

Many fond memories of the old stone house

Editor:

It's time once again to offer my sincere thanks to all the people who made possible all the articles it was my pleasure to write this summer for The Times supplement, "This Week in the Highlands". Without their generous contribution of both time and knowledge, not one word of those stories could have been written. Thanks, too, for the many cups of tea, iced and otherwise.

As always, however, some errors did make it into these pages, the inevitable result of working to tight deadlines without time to corroborate all the facts. One example sticks out which I would like to take this opportunity to rectify.

In the story on Bruce and Muriel Jeffrey's house which was built by the stone mason John Henry Billing, I made certain statements about the ownership of the house, some of which were incorrect. Ruth Sisson Young, a grand-daughter of the original owners now living in Dunsford, phoned to set me straight.

The first owners of the house were, as indicated, Edward and Anne (Wyatt) Sisson who received the free grant from the government in May 1885. The house remained in the family for almost 35 years, passing from Edward to Stephen (in 1900) to Harry (in 1914). In July 1919, Harry sold it to James Alexander Minaker. (Young does not know if Minaker was a relative or not.) Eight months later, in March 1920, Minaker sold the house to William Ferguson, a Sisson cousin who sold it again four months later to James Allan Sisson, one of Edward and Anne's sons.

Allan Sisson brought Florence Oliver to the stone house as his bride in August 1921. Their first three children, Ella (Toye), Ruth, and Glenn were born right in the house. Florence lived in the stone house until her death in 1964. Allan lived there for an unbroken 53 years, until 1972. Five years previously, in December 1967, he signed the house over to his fourth child Donald. On August 10, 1972, Donald sold the house to the Harringtons.

So the house was part of the Sisson family's life for 87 (almost) unbroken years. (In 1978, the Harringtons sold to the Vander Wekkes who in turn sold it to the Jeffreys in 1981, as reported.)

Ruth Sisson Young has very strong memories of the house where she grew up. She remembers, for instance, playing on the wide sill of the window between the living room and kitchen; this window was boarded over by the time the Jeffreys took possession. So who boarded it up and when remains a mystery. She was able to clarify, however, that the back kitchen was added sometime before 1923 by her maternal grandfather, Robert Oliver.

"There's a sense of security that comes with a stone house," she said. "We took a lot of pride in that house and I commend the Jeffreys for what they've done."

Snowdon considers anti-noise by-law

In response to a number of noisy parties on the Labour Day weekend, Snowdon Township Council is in the process of adopting an anti-noise by-law.

Council decided Monday to review the noise by-laws being used by neighbouring municipalities with the aim of establishing one for Snowdon. This action was instigated by complaints from Township residents about noisy parties on the long weekend.

Gelert area resident Louise Packard told council of the trouble she encountered when a neighbour held a party on his property that weekend.

Parckard said police were called on the Friday night and again on Saturday. And although the police attended the scene, Packard said they made it clear there was nothing they could do, since there is no by-law to enforce.

Municipal clerk Ernie Hills noted there were at least two other parties in the township that caused noise problems that weekend. After hearing the complaints from neighbours, he contacted the OPP to find out what can be done to prevent this from happening in the future.

Hills said the only way to put a lid on these activities is to endorse a noise by-law. Such a by-law would have to be enforced by the township's by-law enforcement officer, but the police are willing to assist, said Hills.

Snowdon Township's by-law enforcement officer is employed only on a part-time basis, Hills said. Most of the offensive activities happen late at night and can pose some threat to the safety of the officer if he attempts to enter the property, said Hills.

It's possible these problems can be overcome with the help of the police, said Hills. With a by-law in place, he said police could be called to the scene and relay their findings to the by-law enforcement officer, who could then press charges. The officers would then appear as witnesses in court, he said.

"We have the full support of the OPP if we pass a noise by-law," Hills told council.

Councillor Al Jopling sympathised with the complaints expressed by Packard. He said a noisy party was staged by one of his neighbours on the Labour Day weekend. In addition to the usual party-type noised, Jopling said there was also guns being fired. He said police were called to investigate, but found no guns.

Jopling noted that under a noise by-law, charges can only be laid against the owner of the property. Regardless of whether the owner is responsible for the excessive noise, he or she is the person who will face the charges.

Councillor Ron Burk said it would be a good idea for the township to adopt a noise by-law. "We may not have to use it for another two years," he said, "but it would be nice to have it when we need it."

GULL RIVER RACERS

There was plenty of activity at the Minden Wild Water Preserve on September 8 and 9 as dozens of paddlers took on the rapids in the Trailhead Open Canoe Slalom. The races ran throughout Saturday and Sunday in front of a small crowd on the banks of the river.

A brief taste of 'Canada'

The University of Toronto's survey camp is a storehouse of memories

by Susan Grober

Standing at the edge of Gull Lake, University of Toronto Engineering Professor Alex Collins holds an arm out toward the rolling expanse of trees, field and water.

"I suspect many of our students haven't traveled around the country much, so I tease them that this is Canada," he says.

"It's a bit of a tease to the students, but there's something behind it. Staying here is broadening their experience."

To experience a taste of Canada in Haliburton County each year has become a tradition for the professors and students involved.

Although it has been around for close to 70 years, many don't know what goes on beyond the University of Toronto Survey Camp sign on Deep Bay Road in Lutterworth Township. Because of its location a secluded spot fronting Gull Lake, most are led to believe the camp houses biology students learning to measure phosphorus or acid rain levels to determine water quality.

Some are disappointed to learn the students of this camp are in their third of year of U of T's civil engineering course.

Romantic versions of test tubes and fish specimens dissolve into harsh pictures of mathematical equations and students scattered around the camp in groups of three, armed with notepads, tall rulers and theodolites. They actually learn how to survey (measure and map out the size, shape, position and elevation of an area of land) during their 13-day stay at Gull Lake.

"The very last thing people think of when they hear about the camp is that we're teaching how to survey a piece of property," says Collins, who has been visiting the camp since he was a student in 1952. "People don't know or care about that work, because they don't realize its importance."

"One thing that bothers those in the engineering profession is that we don't feel we get the recognition we deserve. We're almost invisible in this profession. If the engineer is successful in his job, then the public doesn't know about his work. But if he's unsuccessful—watch out."

Engineers branch out into a number of different aspects of daily life. There are structural, industrial, municipal, environmental, and transportation engineers. Anything built is first sized and described by an engineer; any traffic lights are timed according to the mathematics calculated by an engineer; the infrastructure of a road is designed by an engineer; the distribution of sewage treatment plants and landfill sites are decided upon by engineers.

"If you make a list of the most significant technological advances known to mankind, on that list would be that our health is improving," says Collins. "That's all because of an improved quality of our water. That's an aspect of environmental engineering that's been with us for a long time that most people take for granted."

"Civil engineers have been active in the provision of clean, drinkable water."

Surveying is just one aspect of engineering work, and a skill most of the students won't get a chance to use after they graduate. "We don't expect these grads to be involved daily in this sort of thing," says Collins. "Most of these guys will be in management executive positions, involved in the development of enterprise."

"They must experience the fundamentals, but they aren't given the amount of time necessary to be skilled in the details."

One might wonder why the university would maintain a large chunk of land for a small group of students who attend less than two weeks out of the year. True, the place is rented out to other university departments (yes, including zoologists who do perform water quality tests on the lakes), and the occasional group of camp kids, such as a group of Baha'i children who enjoyed swimming in the blue waters and frolicking along the slopes of grass for four weeks this summer.

But many professors and former students are sentimental about the memories which linger on at the camp.

Rumour has it that a picture of the camp by an artist who used to sketch there hangs in the White House, says Paul Aggett. Aggett and his wife Faith have acted as caretakers at the camp for the past several years. They relate the history of the property with pride.

Students attending the University of Toronto survey camp on Gull Lake expend some of their energy creating elaborate mementos to record their brief visit. The walls and ceiling of the bunkhouse are covered with these drawings.

The survey camp was established in 1920 by professors L.B. Stewart and E.M. Banting, who both spent a summer searching through the Muskoka and Haliburton districts to find a suitable location.

A manual produced in 1930 by the university's Applied Science and Engineering faculty explains that, before the camp was founded, any survey work was performed on university grounds.

From the 1920's the survey course was compulsory for those in third year civil and mining engineering, and registered as optional for those in fourth year astronomy. Instruction on geology and architecture was also provided. Today the camp's survey course is restricted to civil engineering students.

In the old days, students would travel by train from Toronto to Lindsay, and then on to Gelert. A list of expenses in the manual gives some idea of rail-fare in 1930: return fare from Toronto to Gelert was $7.05, return fare to the camp was an additional $3. How times have changed.

Since students then stayed at the camp for several weeks, the manual also provides a list of necessary "personal equipment":

"Each student will provide at least two pairs of heavy blankets, sheets, towels, raincoats, personal supplies. Students are urged to bring indoor baseball equipment, musical instruments, boxing gloves, swimming outfits, etc., so as to make the hours after work as pleasant as possible."

Today, any student would balk at this thought of rest and relaxation. With less than two weeks at the camp, almost all their waking hours are filled with work, work, and more work. They have few chances to appreciate the beauty of the Highlands, although some do find time to drop in at the Rockcliffe Hotel at least once.

"We're on the field from eight in the morning until midnight, working on calculations," says student Tony Ponzi. "It's not that it's hard, it's just that there's a lot to do. And it's all repetitive stuff, over and over."

"I brought my fishing rod, but I haven't been able to use it," adds a disappointed Rinaldo Rossi. "The only places we've been are the Rockcliffe and Becker's. It's very different here from Toronto."

Different indeed. The quiet life of Lutterworth is a far step from Toronto, especially for a group of 19-to-23-year-old university students with a bad reputation.

"W-e-l-l," admits Frank Pericone, "the engineering students are considered to be rather rowdy."

Accustomed to bawdy orientation parties (complete with life-size inflatable sex dolls) and producing a notorious student newspaper (the Toike Oike) which has been banned by upset women's groups, it seems Haliburton County doesn't offer the kind of wildlife an engineering student is looking for.

These days, about 60 per cent of the students are housed at the Leslie M.

The personalities of each graduating class are etched in the walls of the rustic bunkhouse

Frost Centre and practise surveying there. The other 40 per cent spend two weeks in "Canada", as Collins calls it.

He says it will broaden their experience. The students will tell you their experience has become a little too broad. Especially when compared with students at the Frost Centre, who stay in two-to-a-room dormitories "with brick walls and T.V. sets," says Ponzi. Female engineering students, who make up about 15 per cent of the 80 students overall, inevitably room at the Frost Centre.

Those who stay at the camp share a bunkhouse, sleeping in bunkbeds left over from WWII, crowded in the centre of the room around an old stone fireplace.

"Some of these guys have never slept in an unheated room on a cold night," says Professor Peter Birkemoe, who teaches the course along with Collins and Professor Cameron Kenney. "After their first night here they learn how it used to be."

The bunkhouse is large and dark—with a few bare light-bulbs strung on the ceiling—but the walls and ceiling come alive with colours from the past.

"The students from years ago would stay for long periods of time," says Kenney. "To relieve boredom they worked on artistic mementos."

Nearly every inch of available wall and ceiling space is filled with names of students, which are listed along with a painting representative of each graduating class.

Artists' styles have changed over the years—from elaborate renderings of survey field-work and cartoon scribbles of the same, to buxom blondes and brunettes in bikinis (or less) and the insignia 6T6 (graduating U of T class of 1966) done in assorted beer caps. (This year's class did theirs in beer cans).

For special graduating classes, several concrete monuments stand outside the bunkhouse. For the class of 1967, which included the last graduating students of mining engineering, a monument states Rest In Peace. Another commemorates those who graduated in 1949, after the war.

Students commemorate their stay through artwork and symbols. A number of staff members who originally taught at the survey camp—such as E.M. Bant-

The survey camp is a busy place during the weeks when engineering students hone their crafts, but in the off season it's a different story. Paul and Faith Aggett are the caretakers for this camp and they enjoy the quiet of the off season.

ing and Donald Treadgold—purchased cottage properties along Gull Lake to maintain their link with the beautiful area, and so they wouldn't be away from their families.

For professor Collins, the camp holds memories which are stirred at the end of each summer when he returns with a new group of young people.

"I feel that I spent several years of my education with a group of very impressive people," he says. "This camp was a time of working closely with them, day after day. Those were good times."

"Each year's students will have different memories, and different feelings about the place. Some will remember their first time in nature, and others will remember the army-barracks style of living in the bunkhouse."

Last year's group of students weren't sure what they would leave behind on the walls of the bunkhouse. But they did have some idea of what memories the bunkhouse would hold for them.

"It's a beautiful place," says Danylo Klufas. "It's just too bad we have to spend it working."

Twelve Mile road will stay open

The 65-year-old closure by-law is probably invalid

The bid to finally close up a portion of Twelve Mile Lake Road has hit a snag and now seems unlikely to be endorsed by Minden Council.

Although a by-law was passed 65 years ago to close up the portion of road between the Hotel Road and Highway 35, Jake Fowell and Gail Abrams argued Thursday that this by-law is invalid.

Since the by-law has never been enforced, Fowell says it is not legally binding. The municipality has maintained the road for at least the past 20 years in order to keep it open, Fowell said.

On August 10 a group of residents from that road approached council asking that the 1935 by-law be enforced. Council did not make a decision at that time, but turned it over to the township's department heads for comment.

When Abrams and Fowell learned of their neighbours' plans to have the road closed up, they set out to stop this action.

"We are in favour of keeping the road open for use by the entire community," Fowell told council in a letter. "The road serves as a vital social and scenic pedestrian as well as vehicular link to families further down the road past the church."

"Should this portion of road be closed and given over to private property then all of the enjoyment now experienced by all those cyclists, walkers, joggers, children on bikes, moms pushing baby strollers, folks walking their dogs and horses and wagons would be forever lost," said Fowell.

Although Reeve Ray Moore doubts the by-law is invalid, he said the road should not be closed unless all the residents support the move.

Councillor Mike Maher, a former OPP officer, said it is quite possible the effect of the by-law is nullified after 20 years of full use by the public. Maher, along with councillors Bob Sisson, Lewis Stevens and Deputy Reeve Bern Berry agreed they would not support the road closure without unanimous consent from the residents.

Road Superintendent Clayton Cameron also told council the Ministry of Transportation also demand unanimous consent from the residents before it would endorse the closure of the Highway 35 access.

Moore, however, said he would like to "let it run its legal course to find out the validity of the by-law." If the 1935 by-law is invalid, "we have a heck of a lot of by-laws that are invalid," he said.

Fowell attempted to explain that this is an unusual case. The age of a by-law alone does not make it invalid, he said. But if the intent of the by-law is ignored, it is a different story.

"This is quite different," said Fowell. "The township has maintained the road to keep it open."

Councillor Stevens noted the amount of public money that has been spent to maintain this road over the years. "For 40 or 50 years the township has been spending money to keep the road up. Now we have to decide if we'll close it for three quarters of the people on the road."

The ball hangs in the air, halfway between Jack Steel's practised pitching arm and Dave Dollo's catcher's mitt behind home plate. In between, a Fenelon Falls player waits for his opportunity to connect. Unfortunately, that's what the Fenelon team did more than the Rockcliffe Hustlers would have liked on Thursday night, as the local squad lost the second in a five game final series 5-1. The Hustlers must win this Wednesday and Thursday nights to keep their play-off chances alive.

DO OR DIE

Hustlers lose two straight to Fenelon Falls

The next game is do or die for the Rockcliffe Hustlers if they wish to keep their hopes alive in the Inter County Baseball League play-off finals.

Last week the local hitters lost two games in the opening round of the best of five series against Fenelon Falls. A loss this coming Wednesday night will wrap up the series and give the end of the season championship to Fenelon.

The Hustlers opened the series with a strong performance Wednesday night in Fenelon Falls. They scored three runs in the first frame and two more in the second inning. However, from that point on the Fenelon team kept a tight lid on the Minden offensive play, while picking up two runs in the second inning, and one each in the fourth, fifth and sixth.

The seven inning game ended with the two teams locked in a 5-5 tie.

In the top of the eighth the Hustlers went down 1-2-3 while they returned the favour in the bottom half after the first batter walked.

Minden came within striking distance in the ninth when Doug Shaw got a base hit, followed by a walk to Brian Shaw and a walk to Greg Newell. With the bases loaded and one out, the opportunity to grab the lead disappeared as Barry Shaw flew out and Jack Snell was struck out.

Two base hits in the opening of their portion of the ninth brought a Fenelon player home and sealed the game for the host club.

Back in Minden on Thursday evening, under the lights in short-sleeve summer weather, the Hustlers again took the lead scoring as single in the bottom of the first. But that was the last run the team was to see for themselves. Fenelon scored three in the second, one in the fourth and another in the seventh to lock up the 5-1 victory.

The series and championship could be decided this Wednesday as the two teams meet again in Fenelon Falls. If the Hustlers should win in that engagement, they'll be back on home turf for the fourth game Thursday night, starting at 8:30 p.m.

Sledding symposium sponsored by Minden group

Sled-dog racers, Siberian dog owners, and working-dog enthusiasts from Moosonee to Massachusetts and California to Carleton Place will be converging on Toronto at the end of September for the Toronto Symposium "Sledding into the Nineties". The two-day event will be held on Saturday, September 29, and Sunday, September 30, at the Park Plaza Hotel.

The Toronto Symposium, presented by the Minden Sled Dog Derby, features four seminars on topics of current interest to dog handlers. The seminars are sponsored by Martin Pet Foods of Elmira, Ontario, who are also race sponsors of the Minden Sled Dog Derby, the world's largest limited-class speed race.

Sports

Shadowed by a Fenelon Falls player, HHSS Senior Soccer player Darryl Winder charges for the ball during a game last Wednesday afternoon. The senior team went down to a 3-0 defeat at the hands of the visitors. The Junior squad also lost their season opener against Fenelon by a 4-2 margin. Scoring for the juniors were Darren Parsons and Mike Morrison.

Boskett foursome captures bowlers crown

Lloyd Boskett, Marion Farr, Dalton Flatt and Lee Oster were the low gross winners at the lawn bowlers annual golf tournament.

In second place were Ross Farr, Maxine Cross, John McIsaac and Herb Gill.

Third place went to Jack

Harrington, Cy Heal, Fred Knight and Wanda Carter.

The longest drive awards went to Ruth Flatt and Ross Farr.

While the golfers were out on the course, other members played cards at the club. Nancy Moore won the bridge award and Velda Harrison won the prize for euchre. Neil Cartwright had the most lone hands.

At 5:30 p.m. May Sinclair and her assistants served a delicious dinner to both groups.

The bowlers thank Lew

Coleman Heat Pumps.

We Put Quality and Efficiency in Its Place.

T.H.E. II (The High Efficiency) Heat Pump is the best heat pump money can buy. Its efficient quality and low maintenance translates to the lowest total cost of ownership you can get. In winter, T.H.E. II Heat Pump uses solar energy to slash your electric heating bills...depending on fuel costs and climate.

In summer, T.H.E. II Heat Pump offers cool air conditioning comfort. It both heats your home in the winter and cools it in the summer...with sterling quality, efficiency and dependability.

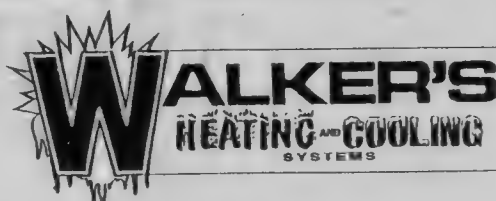

Let us show you all the differences between T.H.E. II Heat Pump and the competition. Once you compare, we think you'll agree, only the Coleman T.H.E. II Heat Pump can provide the economy and year-round performance you're wanting.

Redmen dig deep to offer strong squads

It was back to the books for students at HHSS two weeks ago, but for a select number, the return to the halls of learning also meant a return to the playing field.

Athletic programs in both the boys and girls sector are in full gear and most teams have played their opening games.

Both football teams have played their traditional season opening exhibition game on Friday. Bancroft Collegiate and HHSS have made a tradition of meeting for exhibition games for the past number of seasons and did so again this year on HHSS turf. The scores of the junior and senior games are listed elsewhere on this page.

Since the first day of school, players on both teams have been under a heavy practise regimen, getting ready for the season. The senior team is looking particularly strong with 11 players returning this year. Quarterback Shawn Perrin is back to lead the following veterans: Chris Allaire, Craig Bain, Darren Danylyshen, Jamie Dollo, Greg Hamilton, Jason Morissette, Ryan Timbers, Brian Waller, George Simmons and John Vuksic.

Joining these former senior team members will be graduates of the junior team including: Shawn Deterling, Walt Griffin, Jay Hughes, Mike Hughes, Mark Klages, Scott Morrison, Bill Smith, Kevin Towsaw and Bart Whiting. There are also four rookies on this year's team: Jim Hyde, Andy Lewis, Guy

Turner and Scott O'Neil.

Corbie Kent is back to lead the Junior team from the quarterback position. He will be joined by members of last year's team including: Andy Bacon, Jeff Black, Pat Bradley, Greg Brohman, Chris Greenfield, Steve MacCracken, Todd MacCracken, Ross Lemon, Cory Reynolds, Derek Wilson, Jerry Cooper and Endre Weber.

A crop of 26 rookies are also on the junior roster: Andy Billings, Pete Broh-

The teams first league games will be this Friday

The HHSS Redmen stretch their muscles in a warm-up before the gruelling practice.

Redmen accomplish double shut-out

It was a double shut-out victory for the HHSS football teams Friday afternoon as they tested their skills against their counterparts from Bancroft in exhibition games. The senior team came up with a 32-0 shutout while the juniors notched an 18-0 score.

Darren Danylyshen led the senior's charge with four touchdowns, while Chris Allaire picked up the other major. Brian Waller kicked the conversions. On the defensive side, Shawn Perrin and Jason Morissette both grabbed interceptions.

Three juniors shared the scoring honours. Touchdowns were credited to Jerry Cooper, Andy Bacon and Corbie Kent.

LEGION WEEK September 16th to September 22nd

Pride in our Past, Faith in our Future, was the motto of The Royal Canadian Legion on the occasion of their Diamond Jubilee in 1986. Today, the Legion is still growing with 1700 branches in Canada and a membership of 700,000. Although our commitment is still the care and comfort of veterans, we are becoming more involved with assisting our own communities. This past year the Canadian Legion contributed 2,000,000 volunteer hours and $17,000,000 to various charities.

Our own Minden Legion received its Charter in September 1987. Since that time we have contributed $25,000.00 to the community of Minden and surrounding area through donations to Minden Hospital, Minor Hockey, Brownies, Minden Baseball, Hyland Crest Bus Fund, Fire Department, and Jaws of Life. In 1988 our Ladies Auxiliary was formed and with their support, our branch is fast becoming a viable operation in Minden.

To the community of Minden, we would like to take this opportunity at the start of Legion Week, to express our thanks for your continuing support and assistance. Special thanks for your continuing support and assistance. Special thanks to the council of Anson, Hindon and Minden for their co-operation.

Branch 636 will be open to the public during this week, please take this opportunity to drop in.

Tornado safety quiz may save your life

Most Canadians have never experienced a tornado, but they still pose a very real threat to life and property. There are, on average, 75 tornadoes a year in Canada causing deaths and injuries, not to mention millions of dollars worth of damage.

According to Environment Canada's Atmospheric and Environment Service, tornadoes have occurred in every part of the country except the Arctic. They occur most frequently in the area stretching from the Rocky Mountains eastward to New Brunswick, with the highest risk areas being southwestern Ontario and southeastern Manitoba.

Chances are you'll never experience a tornado, but if you do, you'll want to be prepared. Emergency Preparedness Canada proposes the following quiz to test your knowledge of tornado safety. The answer you give today, may save your life tomorrow.

1. The best place to be during a tornado is the southwest corner of your house.

FALSE: The best place to be during a tornado is in your basement under a work-bench or table; either will protect you from debris hurled into the basement. If you don't have a basement then seek shelter in a small interior room such as a bathroom or closet. Stay away from windows and outside walls.

2. If you live in a mobile home it is safer to stay inside during a tornado rather than seek shelter elsewhere.

FALSE: Mobile homes offer no protection against the power of a tornado. It is far better to seek shelter elsewhere, preferably below ground. If no such shelter is available then lie down in a ditch, depression or culvert and protect your head with your hands.

3. If you are in a vehicle when you spot a tornado, it is safer to remain in the vehicle and try to outrun or avoid the tornado.

FALSE: It is extremely risky to try and drive to safety. Given the unpredictable nature of tornadoes, it is far better to get out of the car and seek shelter in a ditch, depression or culvert. Make sure you're a good distance from the car so it can't roll on you.

4. Partly opening the windows of your residence before a tornado strikes will help prevent windows from being blown in or out.

FALSE: Tornado winds are so strong that opening windows will have little effect one way or the other. The best rule to follow is always stay away from windows.

Guides are ready for exciting season

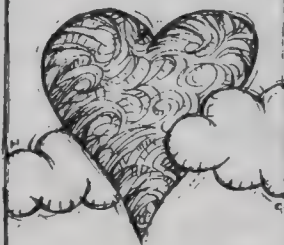

The last official meeting of the Minden Girl Guides to end the '89-'90 season may have been last June, but the girls have not been idle throughout the summer. We must mention that the banquet itself was quite an event with Aimee Mansfield being presented with her All Round Card. That makes the third Guide from the 1st Minden Company to achieve this top award. To complete the evening, we were pleased to move up four girls into Pathfinders which is a continuation of guiding for the 13-15 year age group. We wish much success to this newly formed group.

On June 30th, several of the Guides assisted the County Town Museum committee to serve tea and strawberry shortcake at the Official Opening of the Bowron Homestead. In August, more girls took shifts helping in the Museum Tea Tent at the Haliburton County Fair. Later in August, Faith and Debby took seven Guides to the C.N.E., where they spent the morning name-tagging preschool children at the entrances to the grounds. This is a service the Girl Guides throughout Ontario have provided for years, and the individual companies are invited to participate in. The afternoon at the Ex was spent in pure pleasure!

Meaghan Obee was chosen among many applicants to participate in a Pennsylvania Girl Guide Exchange. She, along with our District Commissioner Nancy Stinson and Haliburton Pathfinder, Shannon Stinson enjoyed a very busy but exciting 8 days, sightseeing points of interest in five states.

Now our thoughts are turning to an exciting new season starting September 18th with Registration and 1st meeting combined at the United Church at 6:30. We are fortunate to have some new Guiders who have volunteered to help Debby and Faith this year and we are anticipating two Guide Companies as well as the new Pathfinder group.

Ladies please remember our pot luck dinner meeting on Sept. 19 at 6:30 p.m.

Our Rotary Park is a lovely place. It has a beauty all it's own, I think it is one of the nicest spots that I have ever known. All summer people come and go, they come from far and near. Some of them have come a long time and some are new this year. But now the summer is almost gone and the Park seems deserted and sad but still we can think of the summer months and the good times that we all had.

Hi Kids!
Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally.

They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

New CITC training course an earth-moving experience

For the past month there has been a beehive of activity in the old Gravel Pit behind Bancroft Motors.

The activity is part of a Backhoe/Loader Training Course sponsored by the Bancroft-Haliburton Industrial Training Committee (CITC).

The CITC initiated the course with a training grant from Canada Employment and Immigration. The program was tendered out to a Scarborough firm named Training Investment Strategies, who work through Loyalist College, and course instructors are Aaron Robbins and Percy Hinze, two Bancroft men with many years of experience in heavy equipment operations.

The seven-week program provides training in Backhoe/Loader operations, and includes hands-on equipment operation, observation time, safety, physics, job layout, equipment maintenance and job search techniques.

Candidates for the course had to meet a number of criteria in order to qualify. They had to be unemployed, re-entering the work force, or in need of training. In addition, candidates needed to have a mechanical aptitude and preferably some experience with equipment. There was a lot of interest shown in the course and eight men and two women were selected to participate. Robbins, the field instructor, says the group has worked extremely well together, has been eager to learn, and has been very committed to the program. Several of the trainees, because of the course and past experience with other equipment, are excellent equipment operators.

Doug Field, of the CITC has been monitoring the program and is very pleased with the progress of the students. According to Field, "the course is nearly complete and some of the trainees have already applied for positions as equipment operators. Even in this slow economy with fall approaching, we hope that some of the trainees will be able to find work. Some of them are excellent operators, are eager to find work, and deserve a chance to prove themselves."

Some trainees actually own their own equipment or have ready access to it. So, if you want to get your project started this fall and beat the GST, call Doug or Cindy at the CITC (332-4356)

Trent- Severn report

On Tuesday, September 4, the stored water in the Haliburton lakes of the Trent-Severn Waterway averaged 58.9 per cent of maximum. The 6 per cent drop in eight days was very fast considering that little more than minimum flow was running from the dams. The dry weather and low groundwater table must have caused much of the decline. This brought the stored water to about 1 per cent less than the 10-year average.

The Kawarthas also declined despite a minimum flow being run from them and several of them ended the week down into their ranges for navigation. Some of the range remains as a safety margin for draught over the lock sills.

August rainfall in 1990 was less than normal in many parts of the Trent and Severn basins.

A clearcut example of conservation

Reflections

by David Suzuki

The Carmanah Valley is a relatively small area of only 6,700 hectares of old growth temperate rainforest on Vancouver Island in British Columbia.

The lower part of the watershed contains huge trees including the "Carmanah giant," the tallest Sitka spruce in Canada at over 90 metres. The area is an exquisite jewel of wilderness that has become an inspiring example of what can be achieved when ordinary citizens care and act.

The watershed was slated to be logged when members of the Western Canada Wilderness Committee (WCWC), a fast growing environmental group, launched a public education campaign in 1988. They used slide shows, newspapers and posters to show the spectacular beauty of the valley. WCWC volunteers began to clear a hiking trail into the rainforest.

The forest company, MacMillan-Bloedel, took out an injunction to stop the trail building, claiming its Tree Farm Licence for Carmanah gave it control of all activities in the forest including recreation.

Essentially, the company was saying that it owned the valley. WCWC went to court arguing that the land belonged to the public and so long as public activity didn't interfere with timber management, people had a right to use the valley. The court agreed with WCWC.

With greater access to the valley, public support for its preservation grew while loggers countered with demands that they be allowed to "share" the forest by clearcutting most of it. WCWC prepared a video, Carmanah Forever, and took 100 artists into a campsite in the valley where they recorded their reactions in pictures and words. WCWC then published these impressions in a coffee table book, Carmanah — Artistic Visions of an Ancient Rainforest, which became a prizewinning bestseller.

Under pressure from both logging and environmental groups, the Vander Zalm government chose an option guaranteed to satisfy no one. The lower half of the valley with the Carmanah giant will be set aside as a park while the upper half will be logged if MacMillan-Bloedel demonstrates that it will not adversely affect the lower part.

With the lower valley secure, WCWC focused on the upper part.

Volunteers of all ages used scrap mill ends of second growth cedar to build a boardwalk through the forest. Today over 3 kilometres of the walk thread delightfully along the valley and ensure a minimum impact by hikers.

Even though we are rapidly "liquidating" old growth rainforests by massive clearcuts, like tropical rainforests, temperate rainforests have a canopy of foliage high above the forest floor. So the WCWC has built a research platform. It has four levels between 37 and 63 metres. No nails have been driven into the trees and all contact points between platform and tree are carefully cushioned with rubber to minimize the impact.

The platforms have opened up virgin territory for researchers. For example, mice have been trapped over 60 meters above ground. Insects caught at various levels have been sent for identification to labs and museums around the world and the researchers are confident they have discovered new species.

A government poster posed another challenge. It reads "WANTED — THE ELUSIVE MARBLED MURRELET" and says that a 100-year search in Canada has failed to discover a single nest of this threatened marine relative of puffins.

Biology student Irene Manley, and climber John Kelson, began to search for a nest. They hit pay dirt in Walbran Valley, a watershed adjacent to Carmanah Valley which is being logged. Without a grant or extensive equipment, these two volunteers outdid well funded government researchers and found the first murrelet nest in Canada to add to the 10 known in the U.S. and Soviet Union.

When WCWC called a press conference to announce the find, the Canadian Wildlife Service murrelet expert declined, but Harry Carter, a scientist with the U.S. Fish and Game Department attended with alacrity. He stated that the 2,000 murrelets in California, more than in Washington and Oregon combined, are doomed because they have an absolute requirement for old growth forest and there is too little left in the state to support them.

The large Alaskan murrelet population probably differs from the southern birds. Thus B.C., with an estimated 45,000 birds, has the best chance of preserving marbled murrelets, Carter said, because the province still has large enough tracts of old growth. But why do these seabirds fly such long distances inland to nest? How much space do they need per nesting pair? Can they adapt to second growth?

Without preservation of large areas of old growth forests, we may never find out and the birds' future will be in doubt.

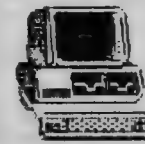

With their daring research forays, WCWC volunteers have highlighted how little scientists know and how invaluable watersheds like Carmanah can be in providing information. WCWC, 20 Water St., Vancouver, B.C. V6B 1A4 (phone 604-683-8220) is a grassroots organization at its most effective and still needs support and volunteers.

Carmanah may still be logged, but not for lack of effort by people who wanted it saved.

Activities are moved to make room for voters

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Well here we are in another month, summer has almost gone and school is in full swing again. It's hard to realize we had a summer.

This week since Doris is on vacation Dana Lee has been in charge and she conducted the activities in a very able way. Most of this week the auditorium has been in use for the elections, so we had to use other facilities for our activities, like having "fun and fitness" in the main lounge and the tea party in the dining room.

Wednesday afternoon I went with Terry to his home where I was met by Kevin (my grandson) his wife Claudia, Hans and Christel Valentine of Mattingen, West Germany, Claudia's mother and father and Clara Austin, Norma's mother. We went to Silver Birches Lodge for dinner, then back to Terry's where we watched movies of Kevin's graduation and his and Claudia's wedding pictures. Claudia's parents had not seen them before.

Thursday afternoon the ladies from the Baptist Church in Kinmount entertained us with a delicious lunch served by Doreen Wilkinson, Olive Wilson, Phyllis Andres, Doris Barkwell, Eileen Payne and Don Wilkinson. When we had finished having tea Doreen Wilkinson recited three poems for us about Grandmothers and read a passage from the bible we also had a short prayer. The tea party was held in the dining room, the residents thank them sincerely for the tea party. Also thanks to Kathy Gartshore and Dana Lee for their assistance during the tea.

Thursday evening Tom McAllister called bingo for us. We played in the dining room for this also and we thank Tom very much for helping us to have a happy evening.

Friday afternoon was Happy Hour. The entertainment was piano music by Lucille Clarke and we thank her immensely. The volunteers to help serve the residents and friends were Don and Ellen Holden and Mary Guillemine whom we also thank very much.

There was nothing special during the week. This month we have quite a list of birthdays. So far a very special Happy Birthday to Isabella Eastman September 9. Mrs. Eastman was 101 years old. Happy birthday to Gladys Kirkpatrick on September 10, also to William Moore whose birthday was September 11 and Nancy Carefoot with a birthday September 12 - more to come next week.

Tuesday Doris arranged an outing for us. We loaded the bus at 11 o'clock and drove to General Lee's on the by-pass. Everyone ordered whatever they desired. It was very good. When everyone finished we loaded up again and Doris drove to Ingoldsby across to Lochlin, Gelert back by the South Lake Road to Kawartha Dairy for our usual treat. We wish to thank sincerely for their hard work, Jean Robson, Helen Donaldson, Dana Lee (nursing staff) and Doris who we feel we couldn't get along without. Others from the nursing staff helped to load before we left.

Monday afternoon I was surprised and happy when my grandson Rick Barnum came to visit me. He is in the OPP and stationed at Sharbot Lake.

Alice Rivers has returned from having treatments in the hospital. It is nice to have her back.

Tuesday morning chapel service was conducted by Pastor Fast. Those who attended pronounced it a wonderful service and wish to thank him very much.

Sunday night chapel service was taken by Rev. John Burgess. Alice Jones wasn't here to play the organ, which is so helpful but everyone who was there put their hearts into their singing and it was very good. Thank you Rev. Burgess.

We had arts and crafts today. There were quite a few present and we accomplished a lot of work.

Wednesday night we had music by Earl Cooper and Kathy Owens. They played the piano and Earl the violin. For awhile he played the mandolin and finally Kathy played the accordion and they sang a few hymns. We enjoyed them very much and thank them sincerely for coming and playing for us.

Playschool registration

Mothers of pre-school children ages 3 to 5 will be parking outside Minden's St. Paul's Anglican Church at 7:50 p.m. in preparation for the 8 p.m. registration meeting scheduled for Thursday, September 20 for Minden Nursery Playschool.

As in the past 17 years mothers will help to provide a relaxed but busy atmosphere where our little ones can learn to socialize harmoniously.

The playschool provides an equipped atmosphere where activities such as circle time, craft time and story time enable our youngsters to express themselves imaginatively, develop co-ordination and learn the skills of sharing and inter-play with others.

This year's executive hopes you'll join them on the 20th for the annual commencement.

Acid Rain Report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of September 2 to September 8.

September 4, 4 mm rain, 4.3 pH, from Michigan and southern Ontario.

September 6, 6 mm rain, 3.9 pH, from Michigan and southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Sometime ago you were asked by the Ministry of Health for Ontario to complete an application to receive a personalized OHIP card.

Many residents of Ontario have now received their new cards, while others are still waiting. The ministry has assured us that all cards will be processed and mailed prior to December 1, 1990. In time for use starting January 1, 1991.

If you still have not received your card by November 1, 1990 please contact the ministry by calling 1-800-461-7597, or your nearest information centre for assistance.

In Haliburton, the centre is open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 457-2733. The satellite office in Minden is open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100.

If you live outside the toll-free area, please call collect.

I would like to thank The Times for the story written about my family. I would like to thank Lynn Winans, Dianne Clause, Monk's Funeral Home and the Legion for donating money to help reunite us, and Perfect Prints who did a beautiful job on some old photos. My apologies to my son's adoptive mother for anything I said that offended her. I haven't seen my son yet, but the money is still in the bank and I hope to see him soon. Evelyn MacKenzie

To Lloyd & Joanne Brown, Pet Food Place, Minden, for their generosity and support of the pet show - a big vote of thanks. Ann for the cat show, many thanks, but most of all to the contestants, both feline & canine, you were great fun and I thank you for the privilege, but it is time to turn the reins over to someone else. Thank you all, the pleasure was mine.

Jack Lawr,
Pet Show Judge,
Stanhope Fun Day.
